

Dear Parent/Guardian,

Information on Enrollment in School for Elementary and Junior High Schools

1 Compulsory Education System in Japan

Foreign children can be educated in the same way as Japanese children. Children can enroll in elementary schools in the first April after the age of six years, and receive six years of education. Children can receive three years of education in junior high school until the end of their fifteen-year-old school year. There is no tuition at public schools.

There is also a system called the "School Assistance System" that helps people who meet certain requirements to purchase school supplies and pay for meals.
